

David Owe

I can because I believe that I can

The 28 year old actor David Owe has quickly acquired an image as a person for whom everything succeeds. Much to the fascination of most – and the irritation of the envious – he is dancing, riding and juggling his way with the speed of lightning into “stage stardom”. Among other things he will be back in the TV-series “Ørnen” this autumn, where he is acting as Michael the IT genius.

Oh, if only he was a little less accomplished, had ugly teeth, huge ears or at least was an involuntarily bachelor! But no! Not a chance with David Owe. According to him the secret is that because he believes he can do everything he actually can accomplish most things. After finishing his education as an actor just three years ago and even before that kick starting his career with the TV-series “The Eagle”, he constantly had good luck. Apart from some unfortunate articles and statements to the media, he has managed the shards pretty well and is today one of Denmark’s most sought-after and popular actors.

“I was called yesterday and asked if I wanted to act in a movie. I just had to read the manuscript and then get back to them. Casting was not a question. Sitting on a turquoise cotton rug which forms the tablecloth for our picnic in “Dyrehaven” just north of Copenhagen, David Owe admits that; “this is the definite advantage to me being as famous as I am now”. “Dyrehaven” is the practical choice because then David Owe can get back to work quickly after the interview. He is presently playing Balder the God in the outdoor performance

“Thor”. The Royal Theatre is playing it at “Dyrehaven” in the place called “Ulvedalene”.

The photographer, David Owe and I toast each other and peer up at the dark grey clouds and the sun peeks through instantly. Does the sun always shine where David Owe is around?

What is your explanation for your success?

“I have always had a feeling that I was good. I have been given the job most of times that I have applied for work, even when I applied in a paint shop. I don’t hide my light under a bushel and I rarely speculate about what other people think about me. Fortunately, I don’t battle with doubts as to my abilities, as many of my
